BOATS SUNK BY STORM

Breakwater needed says fisherman

Seven boats were sunk at the Seaholme anchorage last Wednesday as a result of an overnight storm.

A cabin cruiser valued at about $1000 was completely submerged as was a small 18-footer, while a 30 ft. boat broke its moorings and was washed ashore.

Seaholme professional fisherman Ken Wise said yesterday that boat owners risked thousands of dollars worth of damage to their craft by mooring them at Seaholme.

He said lack of a breakwater left boats completely unprotected against the sea.

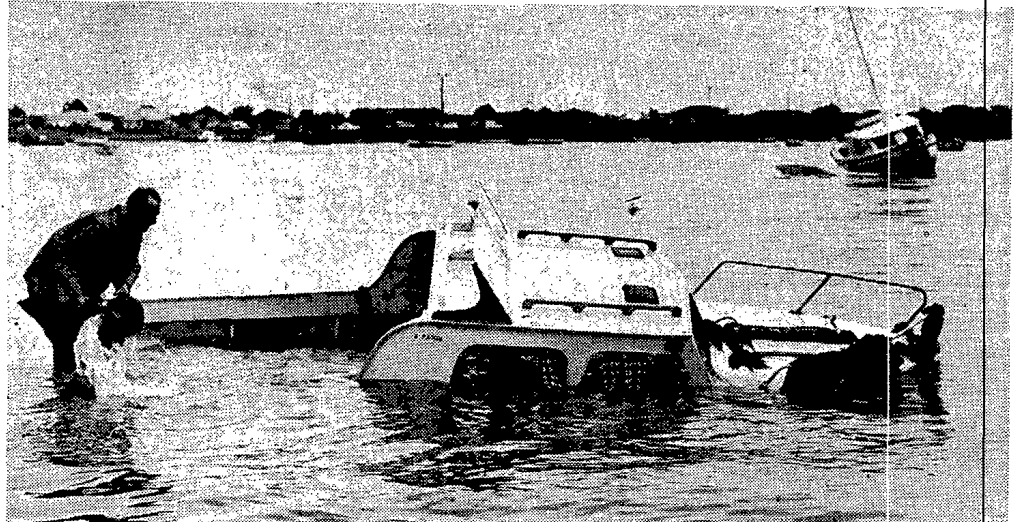

"We have had as many as 13 boats sunk in one storm when we used to run a boat hire service," Mr Wise added.

He said that boat owners had pressed for a breakwater some years ago and although work had commenced, it was stopped by local opinion.

Mr Wise's claim was backed up by Altona City Engineer (Mr R. C. Simmons).

Mr Simmons said the council had for some time wanted to build up the beach which was very narrow at high tide.

He said MMBW experts considered the solution would be to construct long groynes, made of stone, some 1000 feet out to sea and spaced 2000 to 3000 feet apart.

Killer octopus washed on to beach

Six-year-old Derek Russell finds nothing to smile about as he holds a plate of three octopuses. Found on the beach at Altona, these octopuses were identified by local fishermen as the highly dangerous blue-ringed variety.

Several octopuses, identified by local fishermen as the dangerous blue-ringed variety, were washed on to Altona beach with seaweed after last Thursday's storm.

The bite of a blue-ringed octopus can cause paralysis and is sometimes fatal.

Mr Jim Russell, Altona, told the STAR that he found three of the octopuses swimming in rock pools.

They were brown and were about six or seven inches from one tentacle tip to the other.

Each tentacle had a series of blue rings around it.

He collected them by picking them up on a toy spade and putting them into a tin.

Local children found another 18 octopuses.

Mr Russell said he had asked the Commonwealth Serum Laboratories to come and identify the octopuses.

EARLY COPY

Next week the Altona Star goes to press one day earlier, on Tuesday, December 22.

Correspondents, particularly those attached to sporting organisations, are asked to note the earlier publishing date and ensure that copy reaches the Star no later than Sunday, 5 p.m.

This issue will be the last for the year. The first issue of the Star next year will be printed on January 13.

The management takes this opportunity to wish all its readers a joyful Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

TOP JOCKEY CAN'T HAVE A HORSE

Ever since he was a young child, 15-year-old David Cookson of Sargood Street, Altona, has wanted to own a horse.

But it looks as if David will never have a horse of his own, because jockeys are not allowed to keep them.

David has one compensation though. He can go six-day working week, all David riding every day. David wants to do on Sundays is sleep.

This year he became the best apprentice jockey from 64 applicants who competed in a written exam, on horse husbandry and general knowledge. "A jockey needs good reflexes," David said, "but training counts a lot, too."

David will be presented with a saddle on Monday night in recognition of his achievement. "My apprenticeship will last another five and a half years, until I'm 21. It's a long time, but it will be worthwhile."

The life of an apprentice jockey is a hard one. He starts work at 5 a.m. and his day ends at 7 p.m.

There are rest periods in between, but after a well. He is always so well mannered," Mr. Jacobs said.

Part of the apprentices' education is viewing racing films which illustrate the mistakes some jockeys make.

David would like to follow in Frank Reys' footsteps and, ultimately, he wants to win the Melbourne Cup.

Club sees scenes of Vietnam

Last Friday night a large collection of slides was shown to Altona Camera Club depicting Vietnam, as seen through the eyes of a serving soldier.

Slides and prints for the last club competition for the year will be judged on Friday, December 18, and to celebrate the occasion, members are requested to bring a plate.

A recent car rally proved popular and will be re-run next year with certain variations, as the area proved photographically spectacular.

With the holiday period rapidly approaching, it is anticipated that a record number of slides and prints will be shown at the club in February.

The club will continue its meetings throughout the holidays.

Altona Camera Club meets each Friday, except the first in each month at the Homestead in Queen Street. New members are always welcome. Full information is available from 398 1937.

Elderly citizens visit Box Hill

Members of the Altona Elderly Citizens' Club recently visited the Box Hill club and were treated to a concert and afternoon tea.

Games and cards were again played on Tuesday and Thursday and the special effort will be drawn at 8 p.m.

A Christmas dance will take place in the Altona club rooms in Sargood Street on Christmas eve.

A New Year's dance will also be held. Admission will be only 30 cents. Former club member, the late Mrs. E. Dickie has left the club $100 in her will.

The Petrochemical Company and Dow Chemicals recently donated $200 each to the club.

The Christmas hamper

$200 for hospitals

Footscray, Williamstown and Altona Hospitals were each presented with cheques for $200 by Petroleum Refineries (Australia) Pty. Ltd., at a recent function.

In presenting the cheques, general manager Mr. Wilbur Yeo, said he recognised that industry had a responsibility in community affairs, and as hospitals serve the people, they were worthy of whatever help any organisation could provide.

Among guests at the cheque presentation were representatives of Parliament, Altona and Williamstown councils, local high, technical and primary schools, members of Lions, Apex, Rotary and Legacy clubs and many other notable people from both Government and industry.

POLICEMAN'S DAUGHTER IS MAULED BY DOG

Twenty-six stitches were inserted in a nine-inch wound in the back of a seven year-old girl's head after she had been savaged by an alsatian, Williamstown Court was told last week.

Before the court was Wilhelm Johannes Braentel, of 37 Chifley Avenue, Altona, on charges of having an unregistered dog, being the owner of a dog which attacked a person, and allowing an unmuzzled dog on the street.

Detective Don Saunders, Williamstown CIB, told the court that on September 26 his daughter, Jennifer, had been playing in the street near his home at 31 Chifley Avenue, Altona.

He heard her screaming, and found her with blood streaming from a wound in the back of her head. The child's blood stained the jumper was produced as evidence. Saunders said that, as he was driving his daughter to the hospital he saw Mrs. Braentel, dog's lead in hand, trying to attract the attention of an alsatian at the corner of Fisher Court and Chifley Avenue.

Peter Yomelos, of 15 Watson Street, Altona, said he was driving along Chifley Avenue when he saw an alsatian shaking a child by the back of the head as if she were a doll.

Frightened

He said he drove his car up the gutter at the dog to frighten it away.

Kenneth John Davis, of 32 Chifley Avenue, Altona, told the court he was working in his front garden when the attack took place. He ran across the road to frighten the dog away.

Braentel did not give evidence, but admitted the dog was his when interviewed by police on September 27, the court was told.

It was usually kept in a specially constructed kennel in his back yard.

It was allowed to run around the back yard, but special precautions had been taken to ensure the dog could not open the gate.

The gate must have been left unlocked on the day the dog escaped, the court was told.

Braentel told police he knew the dog should have been registered but that it was too expensive.

There had been no need to muzzle the dog, as it was never intended that it should be out in the street.

Mr. J. R. Aitken, SM, in finding Braentel guilty, said he took into account the fact that the dog was subsequently destroyed and that Braentel took reasonable precautions to keep it secured on his own property.

He fined Braentel $20 for having an unregistered dog and ordered him to pay $11 registration fee and $1.50 costs.

He fined him another $20 for owning a dog which attacked a person, and $10 for having an unmuzzled dog.

Attractive Anne Higgins of Altona, formerly well-known as a teacher of elocution in the district, is now settling down to the job of housewife to her new husband, Robert.

Mrs. Grant dies after husband's death

Tragedy followed tragedy with the death of Mrs. Jessie Louise Grant, 76, at Footscray Hospital last Friday.

Mrs. Grant had been admitted to hospital on hearing the news of her husband's collapse. Mr. Bill Grant died on Monday, December 7, without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. Grant, the mother of Altona Mayor Cr. Doug Grant, is survived by daughter Jean (Mrs. Wallace) and sons George, Alan, Doug and Noel.

Her funeral took place yesterday (Tuesday) at the Memorial Park Lawn Cemetery after a service at St. Eanswythe's.

A history of land development in Altona

A mention of Henry Upton Alcock is not complete without disclosing that 18 months after 1852 he started to make the now famous brand of Alcock billiard tables, and also wood furniture.

His business thrived and at his death in 1912 was a very wealthy man.

William H. Perryman—at present little is known about this man except that he was an auctioneer and did the actual selling of the land at Altona.

Ross K. Macartney—The company records list him as a timber merchant. That is all that is known of him.

STREET ORIGINS

Mr. Blyth applied to Werribee Council for permission for the new railway to cross any roads in the area. This being granted the railway was constructed to Pier Street.

Most of the streets laid out by the first syndicate and named by the second still retain their original names, herewith follows a list of streets and their probable meaning.

From east to west—Victoria Street after the then sovereign of England, Queen Victoria (1837-1901) now named Millers Road, probably after Henry Miller.

Seves Street—a corruption of the second name of John Slives Hosie.

Bayview Street—named because of its close proximity to the bay. Mount Street—Unknown.

Davies Street—After Sir Matthew Henry Davies, born Geelong 1850, became a solicitor 1875, Mayor of Prahran 1881, Member for St. Kilda and held the position of Speaker of the Legislative Assembly at the time of the street's naming. This man was mixed up in many of the land companies of the period some of which carried on various peculiar if not illegal dealings.

Bent Street after Sir Thomas Bent who was born Penrith NSW 1838, came to Victoria as a boy and settled near McKinnon with his father, conducting market gardening. Thomas became involved in politics and held very many important positions including that of Premier of Victoria; early this century. He died in 1909. He was mixed up with some of the land companies of the time.

Pier Street—named because of its location in relation to the Pier.

Sargood Street—After Sir Frederick Thomas Sargood, born London 1834 came to Melbourne in 1850. Worked in his father's firm. In 1874 he was elected to the Legislative Council, in 1875 he became the first chairman of the Harbour Trust and held many other civil and political positions. He played a leading part in the formation of Australia as a nation. In 1901 he became a Senator for Victoria and died in 1903.

McBain Street After Sir James McBain who was born in Scotland and came to Australia in the 1850s. He progressed very well in business, went into politics in 1864 and was President of the Legislative Council at the time the streets were named.

David Street—After David Munro, one of the land syndicate members.

Romawi Street—This name is believed to be a composite of 'Rose', 'Mary' and 'William', offspring of a settler of the time.

Upton Street—after Henry Upton Alcock, one of the syndicate members.

Webb Street—after William Telford Webb, another leading politician of the time. The northern section is now 'Hancock Street' after an early Altona family.

Fanny Street—Unknown now Rayner Street after an Altona family that has lived here since the 1880s.

Rose Street—Unknown. Killy Street—Unknown, now Greve Parade after David Grieve who took over Kororoit Park and farmed it for many years. David Grieve was also a representative of Altona Riding and was president of Werribee in 1938.

Two other streets are shown west of Grieve Parade but were never developed. They were:—

Mary Street—Unknown. James Street—after Charles Henry James who became a millionaire on paper during the land boom but lost everything in the crash and died owing his creditors thousands of pounds.

Now from North to

Written by ALLAN J. CLARK, Hon. Secretary of the Altona Historical Society.

South: Nellie Street—Unknown. Now called Civic Parade because the Civic offices are located in this street.

Railway Street, North and South:—so named because the streets flank the Altona Railway.

Blyth Street—after John Blyth, one of the land syndicate.

Queen Street—presumably after Queen Victoria.

Altona Esplanade (now the Esplanade) as its name implies, a promenade fronting the sea.

WERRIBEE CHOSEN

Altona's future development at this time hinged between a suburb or a sewerage farm. It must be remembered that Melbourne was not sewered and various areas were being looked into for a suitable farm to service the proposed system. Fortunately for Altona, Werribee was chosen for this high honor.

Various advertisements appearing in newspapers from August onwards soon showed what Altona was to be.

One advertisement read Auction—Saturday, September 8, 3 o'clock, on the ground—first grand subdivisional sale—281 allotments. Then followed a list of streets bounded by Nellie (now Civic Pde)

St. McBain St., Esplanade and Mount Street, of quarter to half acre blocks. Also Homestead with 13 acres of land "suitable for the erection of an Hotel or Coffee Palace."

"Magnificent watering place", (!) further along came "Yan Yean laid out so that the ladies that attend the sale may feel sure of a cup of tea at the Homestead". "Railway to Pier Street" informed the advert. Then a piece of re-assurance (Altona must have had a bad name in those days) "You need not be afraid, you can attend the sale either by steamer (boat) or by rail".

Then came the crowning statement: "Altona Pier for length, strength and beauty is peerless, Altona bay is another St. Kilda (Well, well!) Then came some more softening up. "The Auctioneers confidently assert that those who are fortunate enough to become purchasers in the estate will double their money."

Then came the bait "Free Passes" to get to the ground so Free refreshments could be had. Other adverts referred to the unborn child as the "land that would bloom in the spring" (Tra la).

According to the late John Alfred, whose article we now draw on, the bait was taken. "On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the first sale the agents office was besieged by applicants for passes. The first printing of several thousands were quickly exhausted; then a second and third editions were made till the printers ink gave out or the machinery broke down."

Large colored views were on the hoardings rounding St. Paul's Cathedral and shield shaped cardinal banners were suspended from upper windows of business establishments with the device "Altona Bay Estate—September 8".

On the Saturday prior to the sale a special train conveyed "150 ladies and gentlemen at the invitation of the proprietors" to the ground. This was probably the first passenger train to Altona.

During the ensuing week steam trains ran continually every day, taking intending buyers on the 25 minute (?) journey to the estate whilst the steamer Surprise sailed in the afternoon of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday to Altona.

September 8—saleday dawned "Beautifully fine". "The estate looked remarkably well after the recent rains". Special trains ran at intervals from Spencer Street railway station bursting at the seams with passengers, an extra train had to be put on to cope and one of the trains had to run back to Newport to pick up people from Williamstown.

"Yet it seems more people went by boat. The S.S. Williams left Queens Wharf at 1.30 p.m. with 600 souls. It was top heavy at first, many persons being on the hurricane deck. A good deal of 'Altona Bay Estate' bunting was flying on the old craft (like a circus going to sea)."

Meanwhile the Rescue and the Surprise steamed their way westward from Sandridge (Port Melbourne) with their loads of human cargo towards Altona Pier.

Several hundred of the trains' passengers were on this edifice to greet them as the boats pulled alongside. Then they surged towards the Homestead where it was said refreshments (free, of course) were to be had.

Before the sales commenced many people promenaded up and down the beach, others inspected the estate whilst others climbed the lookout near Sargood and Blyth streets for the view.

EYE WITNESS ACCOUNT

An eyewitness described the day: "The beach glistened in the spring sunlight. It was quite enchanting and refreshing as tiny wavelets broke with a gentle murmuring of the pebbles and sea shells, seaweed and bleached cuttle shells. There were no offensive smells, (OH?), pure ozone air."

The Yan Yean percolated beneath the surface (that means water was laid on). The company had spent a half-million pounds in developing Altona (actually only about half that amount most of which went to purchase the estate).

WATCH THAT TICKET!

A handy tip came our way this week from the RACV.

Don't put that parking infringement notice in your pocket and forget all about it.

The RACV has had puzzled members who have received a parking infringement notice with set penalties and later found that at a court appearance the fine was much higher.

In Victoria when a parking infringement notice is not paid by 14 days, a summons is issued.

The parking ticket has prescribed penalties set out on it. Naturally when a motorist is found guilty in court a higher penalty is imposed. This is normal procedure in all lost appeals.

The penalties prescribed under Section 11A of the Road Traffic Act apply only when expiration is made within the time limit.

If found guilty in court the defendant could expect the fine to be double that which he would have paid under Section 11A. If the summons were issued by the municipal council the stamp duty ($1.50) would also be added.

Morag Tait is admired by her bridegroom, William John Buckles and page boy, Alister McNab after her wedding on November 21 at St. Stephen's Church, Melbourne Road.

Morag is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tait, of Jubilee Street, Newport, and William is the only son of Mrs.

M. Buckles, of South Road, Braybrook. Matron of honor was Mrs. P. Andrews, flower girl was Miss Robyn Hand and Mr.

Wayne Armstrong was best man.

Baptist church runs 'special'

The work of World Aid Relief will be the focus of the Christmas special being run by the young people of the Williamstown Baptist church at 8 p.m. on Friday, December 18, in the church hall.

World Aid Relief is an attempt to have ready money available to be used in special needs such as the recent crisis in Pakistan and the earthquake in Chile.

Many thousands of dollars have been forwarded to assist in such cases each year.

Christmas special will include a play called 'The Shoemakers Dream' in which something of the real meaning of Christmas is suggested.

There will also be enjoyable musical items and carols by candlelight during supper.

The young people have worked very hard to prepare for this programme and feel sure that all who come will have an enjoyable time and go away with fresh thoughts for Christmas.

The offering for World Aid Relief will be made by leaving plates around the hall during the evening.

The church is hoping that by this means it can make an important contribution to world needs in the coming year.

Church activities

Tonight at 106 Bayview Street, Williamstown, will be our prayer and bible study on the subject, what is God really like? Add your thoughts to our discussion at 8.00 p.m. At 8 p.m. on Friday is our Christmas special. This should be an inspiring night for all, with musical items, a play and carols by candlelight during supper.

On Saturday at 4 p.m. the Sunday school will have its Christmas party. At the morning service next Sunday the pastor will speak on the story of Christmas from Luke's Gospel and a communion service will follow. At 7 p.m. the subject will be, Abraham, the friend of God. The annual busy bees carol singing and break-up supper will take place on Monday night December 21.

Dancers stage first show

Last Wednesday evening at the Williamstown Town Hall, Miss Carol Fairy, principal of the Footscray Academy of Dancing, presented her pupils in a song and dance revue Sail Along.

The ages of the 60 young performers ranged from three to 21 years, and each item was well received by an appreciative audience.

The school opened last February, and this was its first production.

After the show the pupils and their mothers presented Miss Fairy with a shoulder bag and car rug.

During the year, Miss Fairy's pupils were successful in examinations with the Commonwealth Society and Royal Academy of Dancing.

Seventeen pupils, from various grades, entered for these examinations, and all passed, with nine receiving honors.

Miss Fairy teaches at the Scout Hall, Hyde Street, Footscray, and will resume on Saturday, February 6.

JUNE LOWNDS WINS CORDELL AWARD

By "THISBE"

June Lownds has won Williamstown Little Theatre's annual Cordell Award for her portrayal of the mother in "Five Finger Exercise".

The Craven Award for the most improved performer of the season went to Christine Bambery.

Mrs. Lownds has been nominated every year since the Cordell Award was first presented. Apart from her many excellent acting roles, she has served as scenery decorator, costume maker and is currently production director.

Mrs. Lownds thanked Mr. Bob Karl, producer of "Five Finger Exercise" for his help with her exacting role.

She also remembered Mr. Ted Cordell in her acceptance speech.

As the Cordell Award is a perpetual trophy, it is customary to make a presentation of a personally-chosen memento to the previous holder.

This year, the last winner, Mr. Leslie Terrell, accepted from the president a Spanish sword.

The Cordell Award announcement was made by Mr. Ron Little, on behalf of Elsie Lang and Norman Fitzpatrick, the other members of the adjudicating panel.

Many excellent performances were mentioned by the panel.

Gary Cameron received a special mention for his mime performance as Harlequin in "The Duenna".

Christine Bambery's award was accepted by her mother, Mrs. Stella Bambery, who was visibly moved by the occasion, as she had worked with Mr. Tom Craven in the early days of the theatre.

Graham Murphy, president of the Little Theatre, presented Mrs. Millie Craven sponsor of the Craven Award with a large sheaf of flowers.

Dinner was provided for guests, who included members of the press, the adjudicators, Mrs. Craven and well-known theatre personalities.

Coffee and conversation concluded the evening, which marked the closing of the theatre for the summer period.

We hope that everyone who has assisted us in so many ways will find the joy of Christmas with their families and success in the New Year.

And now, the curtain falls.

Gail and Robert take handicap

Newport Amateur Swimming Club President's Handicap race was won last Wednesday night by club captain Robert Turner in the boys' section, and Gail Sharp in the girls'.

The club announced this week that it would conduct a learn to swim campaign in the new year.

The campaign will begin on January 3 under the guidance of several coaches.

The campaign will be held for six weeks, and will be open to children between the ages of six and 16.

The club this week extended its congratulations to Geraldine Murphy, who did well in the State swimming championships held at Olympic Pool over the past two week-ends.

She succeeded in gaining one first and three second places in the finals.

In all four events she broke the existing records.

The club's Christmas hamper was won this week by Mr. Jack White, of Leeds Street, Footscray.

Swimmers are reminded to notify the club's secretary if they are unable to swim in the number one district championships to night.

BETA SIGMA PHI

Williamstown Beta Sigma Phi has concluded its activities for 1970.

During the year members made a detailed study of the history, art and life of some of our Asian neighbors. In Indonesian, Malaysian and Japanese, the highlight of which was an Eastern gourmet's flavoursome travelogue.

In March, a guided tour of the oriental art and pottery exhibition at the Cultural Centre was followed by a potters' evening, where members tried their skill with an early hand-operated pottery wheel.

Guest speakers introduced a variety of subjects throughout the year and in April Beta Sigma Phi's annual art show was enjoyed by many residents of the district.

The new Bill Dooley geriatric wing of the Williamstown Hospital benefited by $211.80 from this exhibition.

Williamstown City Band also received a helping hand.

Members donated saleable articles for the band's fete and a cheque for $17.

The Melbourne convention in September was attended by Beta Sigma Phi members from all over Australia and good-will greetings were received from Lady Delacombe, the Premier and many others.

A gift was received from International Headquarters (America) of a beautiful Grecian lamp of learning.

A rose garden was planned for the elderly citizens village in Park Crescent and the Chapter is looking forward to the time when conditions will be favorable for planting.

Gay and friendly social functions abounded during the year.

A Viking festival, family winter weekend at Warburton, beach picnics, a December barbecue where children of the Chapter sang Christmas Carols by candlelight were planned to make membership of the club enjoyable.

As an extension of the club is planned for next year, the committee hopes that more people will benefit from the stimulating activities which will take place in future.

Fined for giving son air rifle

An Altona man was fined $15 in Williamstown Court last week for giving his 13-year-old son an air rifle.

Peter Van Dyke, of 19 Keeshan Court, Altona, was found guilty by Mr. J. R. Aitken, SM, on a charge of giving an air rifle to a person under 18 years of age.

Constable Neville Little, of Altona police, said that about $200 worth of damage had been done to windows of new houses in Altona.

Van Dyke's son had been seen in the area.

Van Dyke said he had not known that it was illegal for his son to have an air rifle.

He had enquired when he bought the rifle and was told by the salesman that it was quite all right.

Beware of costly 'gifts', shoppers told

The NSW Consumer Affairs Council yesterday warned Christmas shoppers to be wary of any advertisement that offered expensive gifts.

The chairman of the Council, Mr J. Newbigging, told shoppers to watch retailers and home appliance discount stores that advertised what appeared to be substantial gifts as bonuses with goods.

Mr Newbigging said experience had shown that the cost of gifts was often included in the purchase price of articles.

He said: "Although Christmas is a time for giving, it is worth remembering that someone has to pay for the gifts."

Dropped catches costly for 'Town Seconds

In the match Williamstown versus Ormond, Williamstown second XI won the toss and put Ormond into bat on a wicket which was affected by rain.

Ormond batted slowly, throughout the day, man-aging to gain 169 runs.

At the close of the day's play Ormond was 8/169.

Bowling figures for Williamstown were: Ray Salter 6/78 from 31 overs and North Shaw taking 2/54 off 24 overs.

In the first day's play Williamstown was all out for 153.

Batting first, Williams-town's opening batsmen Condon and McTaggart were out for nine.

He was to be the top scorer for the day.

Quick wickets are needed by Williamstown to take out the points.
